THE STRIKE SITUATION IN SOMMERAS

- I. Strong circumstantial ovidence links Guatemalan Communists with the paralyzing general strike which began on 5 May among United Fruit Company workers in Honduras in the north (Caribbean) coast region near the Guatemalan border.
 - A. This evidence includes:
 - 1. Communist labor agitators from Guatemala long reported operating in area. Access from unguarded Guatemalan border is easy.
 - 2. Coordinated strike of an estimated 25,000 widely scattered workers, who have had no overt labor organization, in the past, indicates long and efficient planning.
 - and their initial 48-hour eltimatum to company suggests their real concern is with other than bone fide labor objectives.
 - 4. Indications that strike leaders have sufficient funds to provide strikers with food requirements.
 - 5. Contemnian military plane landed without clearance on 1 May in Monduran north coast city of Puerto Cortes. Searched by Honduran authorities and reportedly found to contain a pap of United Fruit

- - 6. On 5 May the Honduran government publicly charged two Guatemalan consuls with subversive activities and closed the two consulates on north coast.
 - 7. Guatemalan ambassador in Honduras recalled on 6 May for consultation.
 - 8. Communist literature inciting to strike found in area -- origin undetermined.
 - 9. Men reported preparing to cross border from Guatemala; Honduran troops now patrolling border.
 - 10. Communist General Confederation of Guatemalan
 Workers (CGTG) issues statement 7 May offering
 "moral and economic support" to strikers.
- II. The strike appears shrewdly timed to coincide with growing political rivalries over the Honduran presidential and congressional elections due 10 October.
 - A. Roughly even three-way political split as elections approach.
 - 1. Nationalist Party -- Nominated 80 year old exdictator Tiburcio Carias, who ruled country with strong hand 1933-48.
 - a. Carias is generally unpopular but reported prepared for a coup if defeat appears probable.

- Carias rumored capable of bringing 9,000 armed men into capital in single day.
- Strong anti-Carias faction in army likely to take counteraction in event of Carias coup.
- b. Carias claims to be only candidate capable of dealing with Communist threat.
- Reformist Party supporters of President Galves who split from Nationalistss and nominated General
 Abraham Williams, pro-US, anti-Communist, Vice President under Carias.
- Liberal Party Traditional opposition party, now believed infiltrated by Communists. Candidate: Dr. Ramon VILLEDA Morales.
- B. Carias is therefore likely to exploit current strike in attempt to show need for his strong hand.
- C. Lack of decisive government action re present strike could be pretext for coup by Carias.
- III. The Honduran government is probably able to maintains order, at least temporarily, in strike zone.
 - A. Thus far the strikers have remained orderly and appear unarmed, except for their machetes.
 - B. Troops in the area were promptly reinforced and control most major points .

 C. Honduran civil and military leaders on the scene have assisted company officials in atempts to negotiate with strikers.
 - It has been difficult, however, to find representative strike committee with which to negotiate.
- IV. Since workers' wages and benefits are actually less than those of United Fruit employees in neighboring countries.

 The strike is susceptible to varied Communist exploitation.
 - A. Honduran politicians are, for the mpst part, notably naive with respect to Communist tactics and might grant Communists an entering wedge in political scene in return for a strike settlement.
 - B. Non-Communist leftists in Honduras are likely to sympathize with strikers, especially if Communist direction is not established.
 - C. Nationalistic, anti-US sentiments are being stirred
 S throughout Central America where the United Fruit
 Company is a strong emotional issue.
